ABSTRACT

This report summarizes some of the important, recent trends in household and family charcteristics, such as educational attainment of the householder, and provides detailed demographic data from the Annual Demographic Supplement to the Current Population Survey. Among the findings contained in this report on current population characteristics in the United States are: the proportion of two-parent family households has decreased dramatically since 1970; the increase in black single parents is slowing; Hispanic single parents have the fastest rate of increase among ethnic groups; and Asian or Pacific Islander families had the fastest growth rate in the 1980s. This report is comprised of 180 pages of detailed statistical tables of population data. These data have implications for education policy makers. (DB)

Household and Family Characteristics: March 1990 and 1989

INTRODUCTION AND HIGHLIGHTS

This report summarizes some of the important recent trends in household and family characteristics, and provides detailed demographic data from the Annual Demographic Supplement to the Current Population Survey. Changes in the number and composition of households have important implications not only for private sector analysts trying to assess potential demand for various consumer products, but also for public policy makers concerned with the conditions under which people are living. Some of the highlights of topics discussed in this year's report are:

- The total number of households in the United States in March 1990 was 93.3 million (±360,000), a net increase of 12.6 million (±501,000) households during the decade since 1980.
- Between 1980 and 1990, the average rate of increase in the number of households was 1.4 (±0.1) percent per year, which was substantially lower than the 2.4 (±0.1) percent per year increase in the 1970's.
- Whereas persons living alone represented 25 (±0.3) percent of all households, they constituted only 9 (±0.2) percent of the total population residing in households.
- The proportion of households accounted for by two-parent families has declined dramatically from 40 (±0.4) percent of the total in 1970 to 26 (±0.3) percent of all households in 1990.
- Families maintained by women (with no husband present) accounted for 44 (±1.1) percent of Black family households in 1990, compared with 13 (±0.3) percent of White family households.
- The number of single-parent situations has increased by 2.8 million (±249,000) since 1980, reaching a total of 9.7 million (±196,000) in 1990.

The data in this report are estimates based on sample surveys, and are thereby subject to sampling variability since they are not based on a complete enumeration of the population. Caution is advised when comparing differences in estimates that are based on a small number of cases, especially if the difference being compared is not large. The values shown above in parentheses represent the 90-percent confidence interval. For a more detailed discussion of sampling error and how it may affect the data, see appendix B.

HOUSEHOLD COMPOSITION

There were an estimated 93.3 million households in the United States in March 1990, according to the Current Population Survey (table A). The total number of households has increased by an average of about 1.3 million per year during the decade since 1980, down from an average of about 1.7 million per year between 1970 and 1980. Clearly, the rate of increase in the number of households has slowed significantly.

A household, as defined by the Census Bureau, comprises the person or persons who occupy a housing unit (i.e., house or apartment). Consequently, the number of households equals the number of occupied housing units. Households exist in a wide variety of types and sizes. Although most households involve some type of family living arrangement, many do not.

There are two major categories of households identified by the Census Bureau: family and nonfamily. A family household has a minimum of two persons present: the householder (i.e., a person who owns/rents the house) and at least one additional person related to the householder by birth, marriage, or adoption. A nonfamily household has either a householder who lives alone, or one who is not related to any of the persons with whom they share the household.

Family households. About 71 percent of all households in 1990 were family households, compared with 74 percent in 1980 and 81 percent in 1970. Although families accounted for just over 7 out of every 10 households in 1990, their share of the total has declined by 10 percentage points since 1970.

The Census Bureau distinguishes three basic types of family households. In 1990, there were 52.3 million maintained by a married couple, 2.9 million with a male householder (no wife present), and 10.9 million with a female householder (no husband present).

Family households maintained by married couples or others do not necessarily include any children among their members. Married-couple families with no own children under 18 present in the home accounted for 30 percent of all households in 1990, which is not significantly different from the corresponding proportion in 1980, and only slightly below that for 1970 (figure 1).

While married-couple families without children present accounted for almost as high a proportion of households in 1990 as they did 20 years ago, the proportion of households accounted for by two-parent families (i.e., married-couple families with one or more own children under 18 present) has declined dramatically. Only 26 percent of households were two-parent families in 1990, down from 31 percent in 1980 and 40 percent in 1970. Thus, there has been a decline of about 14 percentage points since 1970 in the share of households that is composed of two-parent families.

The drop in the number of two-parent families is attributable to the 4.2 million decline between 1970 and 1990 in the number of larger married-couple families with three or more children (table A). During the same period, the number of smaller married-couple families with only one or two children actually increased by 3.2 million.

Families maintained by either men or women with no spouse present accounted for 15 percent of all households in 1990, 13 percent in 1980, and 11 percent in 1970. In about 56 percent of these families in 1990, the children of the householder were present in the home.

Nonfamily households. There were about 27.3 million nonfamily households in 1990, representing almost 3 of every 10 households (29 percent). These households contain no members related to the householder, but a few contain subgroups of persons who are related to each other but not the householder (i.e., unrelated subfamily members).

In 1990, 84 percent of nonfamily households were composed of people who lived alone. A majority of nonfamily householders were women (57 percent), and 89 percent of them lived alone; among male nonfamily householders, 78 percent lived alone.

The dramatic increase in nonfamily households was one of the major changes in household composition during the decade of the 1970's. Although the number of nonfamily households has continued to rise between 1980 and 1990, the average annual rate of increase has only been about half what it was during the previous decade (2.5 versus 5.7 percent per year).

Household population distribution. A somewhat different perspective on household composition emerges from an examination of how the total number of persons in households, rather than the total number of households (i.e., occupied housing units), is distributed among the various major household types. For example, although 29 percent of the 93.3 million households in 1990 were nonfamily households, they accounted for only 14 percent of the 245.8 million persons living in households. Similarly, persons living alone represented 25 percent of all households, they constituted only 9 percent of the total population residing in households (table B).

Most people experience a variety of living arrangements during their lifetime. They may be born into one type of family, spend part of their childhood in another type, perhaps live alone or with a roommate in a nonfamily household for a period as a young adult before forming another family of their own, and finally perhaps live alone again late in life. A sizable majority of the household population, however, lives in family households maintained by married couples. In March 1990, there were 170 million persons living in married-couple families. This represented 69 percent of the household population in 1990 versus 74 percent in 1980 and 82 percent in 1970. Although the share of the household population living in married-couple families has diminished, it remains by far the most common type of living arrangement.

HOUSEHOLD AND FAMILY SIZE

The average number of persons per household is closely related to household composition. Changes in the composition of households have resulted in households which typically include fewer persons than was the case 10 or 20 years ago. Fewer children per family, more single-parent families, and larger numbers of people living alone are among the well-recognized trends that have contributed to the decline in the prevalence of large households and families.

Between 1980 and 1990, the average annual rate of increase in the number of households was about 1.4 percent, versus an increase of about 1.0 percent per year in the number of persons residing in those households (table C). During the 1970's the corresponding rate of increase was higher for the number of household units (2.4 percent per year), but was unchanged for the household population (1.1 percent per year). Since the discrepancy between the rates during the 1970's was larger than during the 1980's because of the higher rate of growth in the number of households, there was a larger drop in household size between 1970 and 1980 than during the 1980-90 period.

Average household size is derived by simply dividing the total household population by the total number of households. The average number of persons per household dropped from 3.14 persons in 1970 to 2.76 persons in 1980. The average in 1990 was 2.63 persons which, although smaller than the 1980 average, was not significantly different from the average for 1989.

Families, by Census definition, do not include one-person households, so their average size is larger than that of households overall. Average family size has declined from 3.58 persons in 1970, to 3.29 persons in 1980 (table A-1). The 1990 average of 3.17 persons per family was not significantly different from the corresponding averages for 1988 and 1989, but was smaller than the average size for 1980.

Much of the decline in household and family size that has occurred since 1970 is due to a drop in the average number of children and other household members under age 18 (figure 2). For example, the average number of persons under 18 per household declined from 1.09 persons in 1970 to 0.69 persons in 1990. By contrast, the average number of persons age 18 and over fell more moderately from 2.05 persons to 1.94 persons during the same 20-year period.

The decline in the average number of persons under 18 per household may have "bottomed out" (see table A-1). A significant increase in this average, or a measurable rise in the number of individuals and families "doubling up" with relatives and others, would result in larger households and families. It is premature, however, to say that the long-term decline in household and family size has, as yet, been reversed.

The fact that the average number of persons per household has declined reflects significant changes in the distribution of households by size. The share of one-person households increased from 17 percent to 25 percent of all households between 1970 and 1990, while households with five or more persons dropped from 21 percent to 10 percent of the total.

Average Size of Households and Families: 1960 to 1990

AGE OF HOUSEHOLDER

The median age of all householders in 1990 was 45.3 years, compared with 46.1 years in 1980, and 48.1 years in 1970 (table D). Despite the fact that the median age of householders is lower than it was 10 or 20 years ago, the number of householders in the youngest age categories has dropped since 1980, reversing the trend of the previous decade. For example, the number of householders age 15 to 19 fell at an average annual rate of 3.2 percent between 1980 and 1990, versus an average increase of 6.2 percent annually between 1970 and 1980.

The aging of the 1946-64 Baby Boom is a significant factor in both the drop in the median age of householders, and the recent decline in the number of young adult householders. The youngest members of the Baby Boom are now age 25 and over, and these disproportionately large birth cohorts have been replaced by the numerically smaller cohorts born after 1964. Along with the change in the age structure, the fact that the share of today's young adults that are forming households is smaller than in earlier years[1] is also contributing to the decline in the number of younger householders. This change in household formation patterns may be a response to economic realities, though other factors may also play a role.

The number of householders aged 35 to 44 increased at the highest rate during the 1980's with an average rise of 3.9 percent annually, compared with 1.7 percent per year during the 1970's. As was the case with the declines in the number of younger householders, the recent large increases in the number of householders in the middle age range reflect, to a large extent, changes in the age structure. During the 1980's Baby Boomers born between 1946 and 1955 replaced the smaller birth cohorts that were 35 to 44 years of age during the 1970's.

changes in family composition during the 1970's. The increase has continued during the 1980's, but at a much slower pace. The average annual rate of increase in the number of female family householders (no husband present) was 5.1 percent from 1970 to 1980, but was up only 2.2 percent per year between 1980 and 1990 (table E). The net result was that about 17 percent of family households were maintained by women alone in 1990, compared with 15 percent in 1980, and 11 percent in 1970.

The proportion of families maintained by women alone is much higher for Blacks than for Whites (figure 3). In 1990, women maintained 44 percent of Black family households, compared with 13 percent of White families. These proportions have risen for both Blacks and Whites, but the rate of increase in the number of these families has fallen significantly during the last half of the 20-year period since 1970. Among Blacks, the average annual increase for women maintaining families fell from 6.8 percent between 1970 and 1980 to 2.7 percent per year since 1980. The corresponding rates of increase among Whites were 4.3 percent between 1970 and 1980, and 1.9 percent since 1980.

[1]1980 Data for Asian or Pacific Islander from 1980 Census of Population, Vol. 1, Table 141.

[2]Persons of Hispanic origin may be of any race; 1970 Hispanic data from 1970 Census of Population, Vol. II, 4A, Table 6.

There were 1.5 million family households in 1990 that were maintained by persons in the Asian or Pacific Islander racial group. About 12 percent of these households were maintained by women alone, a proportion not significantly different than that for Whites, but lower than that for Blacks.

About 23 percent of Hispanic family households were maintained by women alone in 1990, versus 20 percent in 1980 and 15 percent in 1970. Among Hispanics (an ethnic group that may be in any racial category), the number of female family householders increased at an average rate of 7.6 percent annually during the 1970's versus a 6.0 percent annual increase for the 1980's, which was not a significant difference.

Since there is occasional confusion over the issue, it should be mentioned and made clear that families maintained by women do not necessarily include any dependent children. For example, these families could include a woman sharing her home with an elderly parent or any other adult relative. However, in about 61 percent of these families in 1990, one or more of the woman's children under age 18 was present.

SINGLE-PARENT FAMILY SITUATIONS

The number of single-parent situations has increased dramatically from 3.8 million family groups in 1970, to 6.9 million in 1980, and 9.7 million in 1990. Single parents accounted for 28 percent of the 34.7 million one- and two-parent family groups with children under 18 in 1990. This proportion is 15 percentage points higher than it was in 1970 (table F). Single-parent situations increased at a much higher rate from 1970 to 1980, however, than they have since 1980.[2]

The Census Bureau's "family group" concept encompasses each of the three distinct types of family unit: family households, related subfamilies, and unrelated subfamilies (table G). The total number of single-parent situations is made up of householders who own or rent the living quarters in which they and their children reside (about 80 percent of the total), single parents living as a related subfamily with their parents or in some other relative's home (16 percent), and single parents living as an unrelated subfamily in the home of someone to whom they are not related through birth, marriage, or adoption (5 percent).

[2]Modifications introduced in the early 1980's permitted better identification of never-married and other persons maintaining single parent and other subfamily groups. Consequently, the estimated number of single-parent situations in 1980 is too low, and thus the estimated rate of increase between 1970 and 1980 is also too low. This should be kept in mind when making comparisons and noting changes over time. Single parents accounted for 24 percent of family households with children under age 18 in 1990, versus 81 percent of related subfamilies and 95 percent of unrelated subfamilies with children. A household may contain more than one single-parent family group.

Although nearly two-thirds of single parents are White, single parent situations are much more prevalent among Blacks. Among family groups with children present, single-parent situations accounted for about 61 percent of the total for Blacks in 1990 (figure 4) versus 23 percent for Whites (a difference of 38 percentage points). The corresponding single-parent proportions in 1970 were 36 percent for Blacks and 10 percent for Whites (a difference of 26 points). It should be noted that the annual rate of increase in the number of single-parent situations has dropped for both Blacks and Whites since 1980, compared with the 1970-80 period.

Among Hispanics (who may be Black, White, or of any other race), single parents accounted for one-third (33 percent) of all Hispanic family situations in 1990 where a parent and child were both present in the home. Since 1980, the number of Hispanic single parents has increased by about 7 percent per year, which is about twice the rate of increase for all single parents for the same period (3.4 percent). Comparable 1970 Hispanic data are not available.

The vast majority of single parents are women. Mother-child situations represented 86 percent of all one-parent family groups in 1990, down only slightly from their 90-percent share of the total in 1980 and 1970 (table H).[3] Although the number of single mothers is still rising, their average annual rate of increase during the 1980's was only half what it was during the previous decade (3.0 percent versus 6.0 percent).[4]

There were about 1.4 million single fathers in 1990, but they represent a relatively small portion of single parents overall (14 percent). Single fathers were more likely to be found among Whites than Blacks; single fathers accounted for 17 percent of the one-parent family groups maintained by Whites in 1990, compared with just 7 percent of the Black single-parent total.

Virtually all single-parent situations are created through one of five processes: 1) a birth out of wedlock, 2) adoption, 3) marital separation, 4) divorce, or 5) widowhood. Divorced and never-married mothers represented 61 percent of all single parents in 1990, and corresponding groups of single fathers added another 11 percent bringing the overall share represented by these two marital status categories to 72 percent of the single-parent total. The third most common group were single parents who were married, but not living with their spouse (21 percent). The least common marital status for single parents in 1990 was widowed, about 7 percent of the overall total.

As divorce rates have stabilized,[5] the increase in divorced single mothers has also moderated. The number of divorced mothers increased at an average rate of 9.0 percent per year between 1970 and 1980, but it has increased by only 1.6 percent annually since 1980. Some of the measured change since 1970 in the marital status composition of single parents (table H) is due to technical refinements in the processing of our survey results.[6]

Appendix B. Definitions and Explanations

Coverage. The 1990 population in this report includes the civilian noninstitutional population of the United States plus approximately 955,000 members of the Armed Forces in the United States living off post or with their families on post, but excludes all other members of the Armed Forces.

Symbols. A dash (-) represents zero or rounds to zero. The symbol "B" means that the base for the derived figure is less than 75,000. An "X" means not applicable, and "NA" means not available.

Rounding of estimates. Individual figures are rounded to the nearest thousand without being adjusted to group totals, which are independently rounded; percentages are based on the unrounded numbers.

Metropolitan-nonmetropolitan residence. The population residing in metropolitan statistical areas (MSA's) constitutes the metropolitan population. MSA's are defined by the Office of Management and Budget for use in the presentation of statistics by agencies of the Federal Government. An MSA is a geographic area consisting of a large population nucleus, together with adjacent communities which have a high degree of economic and social integration with that nucleus. The definitions specify a boundary around each large city so as to include most or all its suburbs. Entire counties form the MSA building blocks, except in New England where cities and towns are used. The former term SMSA was changed to MSA in 1983.

An area qualifies for recognition as an MSA if (1) it includes a city of at least 50,000 population, or (2) it includes a Census Bureau-defined urbanized area of at least 50,000 with a total metropolitan population of at least 100,000 (75,000 in New England). In addition to the county containing the main city or urbanized area, an MSA may include other counties having strong commuting ties to the central county. If specified conditions are met, certain large MSA's are designated as consolidated MSA's (CMSA's) and divided into component primary MSA's (PMSA's).

In July 1985, the CPS began carrying the metropolitan statistical area definitions announced by the Office of Management and Budget on June 30, 1984. Figures published from the CPS in the early 1980's and throughout most of the 1970's referred to metropolitan areas as defined on the basis of the 1970 census. Since there are important differences in the population classified as metropolitan using the 1970 and 1984 definitions, comparisons should be avoided.

The new CPS metropolitan estimates have consistently been higher than independent estimates of the metropolitan population prepared by the Census Bureau; the new CPS nonmetropolitan estimates have been lower than the independent estimates. The apparent overestimation of metropolitan and underestimation of nonmetropolitan population in the CPS relative to the Census Bureau's independent estimates should be taken into account when using the data.

Age. The age classification is based on the age of the person at the person's last birthday. The adult universe (i.e., population of marriageable age) now comprises persons 15 years old and over. Prior to 1980 the adult universe was 14 years old and over.

Race. The population is divided into three groups on the basis of race: White, Black, and other races. The last category includes Indians, Japanese, Chinese, and any other race except White and Black.

Persons of Hispanic origin. Persons of Hispanic origin in this report were determined on the basis of a question that asked for self-identification of the person's origin or descent. Respondents were asked to select their origin (or the origin of some other household member) from a "flash card" listing ethnic origins. Persons of Hispanic origin, in particular, were those who indicated that their origin was Mexican, Puerto Rican, Cuban, Central or South American, or some other Hispanic origin. Persons of Hispanic origin may be of any race.

Marital status. The marital status classification identifies four major categories: never married, married, widowed, and divorced. These terms refer to the marital status at the time of the enumeration.

The category "married" is further divided into "married, spouse present," "separated," and "other married, spouse absent." A person was classified as "married, spouse present" if the husband or wife was reported as a member of the household, even though he or she may have been temporarily absent on business or on vacation, visiting, in a hospital, etc., at the time of the enumeration. Persons reported as separated included those with legal separations, those living apart with intentions of obtaining a divorce, and other persons permanently or temporarily separated because of marital discord. The group "other married, spouse absent" includes married persons living apart because either the husband or wife was employed and living at a considerable distance from home, was serving away from home in the Armed Forces, had moved to another area, or had a different place of residence for any other reason except separation as defined above.

Husband in Armed Forces. When a woman was reported as married but her husband was not enumerated as a member of the same household, an additional question was asked to determine whether her husband was in the Armed Forces. Women who were reported as separated were not asked the additional question.

Household. A household consists of all the persons who occupy a housing unit. A house, an apartment or other group of rooms, or a single room, is regarded as a housing unit when it is occupied or intended for occupancy as separate living quarters; that is, when the occupants do not live and eat with any other persons in the structure and there is direct access from the outside or through a common hall.

A household includes the related family members and all the unrelated persons, if any, such as lodgers, foster children, wards, or employees who share the housing unit. A person living alone in a housing unit, or a group of unrelated persons sharing a housing unit as partners, is also counted as a household. The count of households excludes group quarters.

Group quarters. As of 1983, group quarters were defined in the Current Population Survey as noninstitutional living arrangements for groups not living in conventional housing units or groups living in housing units containing ten or more unrelated persons or nine or more persons unrelated to the person in charge. (Prior to 1983, group quarters included housing units containing five or more persons unrelated to the person in charge.) Examples of persons in group quarters include a person residing in a rooming house, in staff quarters at a hospital, or in a halfway house. Beginning in 1972, inmates of institutions have not been included in the Current Population Survey.

Householder. The householder refers to the person (or one of the persons) in whose name the housing unit is owned or rented (maintained) or, if there is no such person, any adult member, excluding roomers, boarders, or paid employees. If the house is owned or rented jointly by a married couple, the householder may be either the husband or the wife. The person designated as the householder is the "reference person" to whom the relationship of all other household members, if any, is recorded.

Prior to 1980, the husband was always considered the householder in married-couple households. The number of householders is equal to the number of households. Also, the number of family householders is equal to the number of families.

Head versus householder. Beginning with the 1980 CPS, the Bureau of the Census discontinued the use of the terms "head of household" and "head of family." Instead, the terms "householder" and "family householder" are used. Recent social changes have resulted in greater sharing of household responsibilities among the adult members and, therefore, have made the term "head" increasingly inappropriate in the analysis of household and family data. Specifically, the Census Bureau has discontinued its longtime practice of always classifying the husband as the reference person (head) when he and his wife are living together.

In this report, the term "householder" is used in the presentation of data that had previously been presented with the designation "head." The householder is the first adult household member listed on the questionnaire. The instructions call for listing first the person (or one of the persons) in whose name the home is owned or rented. If a home is owned jointly by a married couple, either the husband or the wife may be listed first, thereby becoming the reference person, or householder, to whom the relationship of other household members is to be recorded.

Reference person. The reference person is the person with regard to whom the relationship of other persons in the household is recorded. The household reference person is the person listed as the householder (see definition of "Householder"). The subfamily reference person is either the single parent or the husband/wife in a married-couple situation.

Family. A family is a group of two persons or more (one of whom is the householder) related by birth, marriage, or adoption and residing together; all such persons (including related subfamily members) are considered as members of one family. Beginning with the 1980 CPS, unrelated subfamilies (referred to in the past as secondary families) are no longer included in the count of families, nor are the members of unrelated subfamilies included in the count of family members.

Family household. A family household is a household maintained by a family (as defined above), and any unrelated persons (unrelated subfamily members and/or secondary individuals) who may be residing there are included. The number of family households is equal to the number of families. The count of family household members differs from the count of family members, however, in that the family household members include all persons living in the household, whereas family members include only the householder and his/her relatives. See the definition of family.

Stepfamily. In this report a stepfamily is a married-couple family household with at least one child under age 18 who is a stepchild (i.e., a son or daughter through marriage, but not by birth) of the householder.

Related subfamily. A related subfamily is a married couple with or without children, or one parent with one or more own never-married children under 18 years old, living in a household and related to, but not including, the person or couple who maintains the household. One example of a related subfamily is a young married couple sharing the home of the husband's or wife's parents. The number of related subfamilies is not included in the count of families.

Unrelated subfamily. An unrelated subfamily (formerly called a secondary family) is a married couple with or without children, or a single parent with one or more own never-married children under 18 years old living in a household. Unrelated subfamily members are not related to the householder. An unrelated subfamily may include persons such as guests, partners, roommates, or resident employees and their spouses and/or children. The number of unrelated subfamily members is included in the total number of household members, but is not included in the count of family members.

Beginning in 1989, any person(s) who is not related to the householder and who is not the husband, wife, parent, or child in an unrelated subfamily is counted as an unrelated individual.

Family group. A family group is any two or more persons (not necessarily including a householder) residing together, and related by birth, marriage, or adoption. A household may be composed of one such group, more than one, or none at all. The count of family groups includes family households, related subfamilies, and unrelated subfamilies.

Married couple. A married couple, as defined for census purposes, is a husband and wife enumerated as members of the same household. The married couple may or may not have children living with them. The expression "husband-wife" or "married-couple" before the term "household," "family," or "subfamily" indicates that the household, family, or subfamily is maintained by a husband and wife. The number of married couples equals the count of married-couple families plus related and unrelated married-couple subfamilies.

Unmarried couple. An unmarried couple is composed of two unrelated adults of the opposite sex (one of whom is the householder) who share a housing unit with or without the presence of children under 15 years old.

Unrelated individuals. Unrelated individuals are persons of any age who are not members of families or subfamilies.

Nonfamily householder. A nonfamily householder is a person maintaining a household while living alone or exclusively with persons to whom they are not related.

Secondary individuals. Secondary individuals are persons of any age who reside in a household, but are not related to the householder (except unrelated subfamily members). Persons who reside in group quarters are also secondary individuals. Examples of a secondary individual include (1) a guest, partner, roommate, or resident employee; (2) a foster child; or (3) a person residing in a rooming house, a halfway house, staff quarters at a hospital, or other type of group quarters.

Own children and related children. "Own" children in a family are sons and daughters, including stepchildren and adopted children, of the householder. Similarly, "own" children in a subfamily are sons and daughters of the married couple or parent in the subfamily. (All children shown as members of related subfamilies are own children of the person(s) maintaining the subfamily.) "Related" children in a family include own children and all other children in the household who are related to the householder by birth, marriage, or adoption. For each type of family unit identified in the CPS, the count of own children under 18 years old is limited to never-married children; however, "own children under 25" and "own children of any age," as the terms are used here, include all children regardless of marital status. The totals include never-married children living away from home in college dormitories.

The count of related children in families was formerly restricted to never-married children. However, beginning with data for 1968 the Bureau of the Census includes ever-married children under the category of related children. This change added approximately 20,000 children to the category of related children in March 1968.

Tenure. A housing unit is "owned" if the owner or co-owner lives in the unit, even if it is mortgaged or not fully paid for. A cooperative or condominium unit is "owned only if the owner or co-owner lives in it. All other occupied units are classified as "rented," including units rented for cash rent and those occupied without payment of cash rent.

Size of household, family, or subfamily. The term "size of household" includes all persons occupying a housing unit. "Size of family" includes the family householder and all other persons in the living quarters who are related to the householder by birth, marriage, or adoption. "Size of related subfamily" includes the husband and wife or the lone parent and their never-married sons and daughters under 18 years of age. "Size of unrelated subfamily" includes the reference person and all other members related to the reference person. If a family has a related subfamily among its members, the size of the family includes the members of the related subfamily.

Units in structure. In the determination of the number of units in a structure, all housing units, both occupied and vacant, were counted. The statistics are presented in terms of the number of occupied housing units in structures of specified size, not in terms of the number of residential structures.

Years of school completed. In this report, data on years of school completed were derived from the combination of answers to two questions, (a) "What is the highest grade of school that the person has attended?" and (b) "Did the person finish this grade?"

The questions on educational attainment applied only to progress in "regular" schooling. Such schools include public, private, and parochial schools (elementary, junior and senior high), colleges, universities, and professional schools, whether day schools or night schools. Thus, "regular" schooling is that which advances a person toward an elementary or professional school degree. Schooling in other than regular schools was counted only if the credits obtained were regarded as transferable to a school in the regular school system.

Labor force and employment status. The definitions of labor force and employment status in this report are related to the population 15 years and over. Persons shown here are classified as in the labor force if they were employed as civilians, unemployed, or in the Armed Forces during the survey week.

Employed. Employed persons comprise (1) all persons who, during the specified week, did any work at all as paid employees or in their own business or profession, or on their own farm, or who worked 15 hours or more as unpaid workers on a farm or in a business operated by a member of the family, and (2) all those who were not working but who had jobs or businesses from which they were temporarily absent because of illness, bad weather, vacation, or labor management dispute, or because they were taking time off for personal reasons, whether or not they were paid by their employers for time off, and whether or not they were seeking other jobs. Excluded from the employed group are persons whose only activity consisted of work around the house (own home housework, painting or repairing own home, etc.) or volunteer work for religious, charitable, and similar organizations.

Unemployed. Unemployed persons are those who, during the survey week, had no employment but were available for work and (1) had engaged in any specific job-seeking activity within the past 4 weeks, such as registering at a public or private employment office, meeting with prospective employers, checking with friends or relatives, placing or answering advertisements, writing letters of application, or being on a union or professional register; (2) were waiting to be called back to a job from which they had been laid off; or (3) were waiting to report to a new wage or salary job within 30 days.

Not in the labor force. All those who are not classified as employed or unemployed are defined as "not in the labor force." This group who are neither employed nor seeking work includes persons engaged only in own home housework, attending school, or unable to work because of long-term physical or mental illness; persons who are retired or too old to work, seasonal workers for whom the survey week fell in an off season, and the voluntary idle. Persons doing only unpaid family work (less than 15 hours) are also classified as not in the labor force.

Income. Data on income cover money income only, prior to deduction for taxes, received from such sources as wages or salaries, net income from self-employment, Social Security, dividends, interest, public assistance and welfare, unemployment compensation, government pensions, and veterans payments. Certain money receipts such as capital gains are not included. For a more detailed explanation of income, see Bureau of the Census, Current Population Reports, Series P-60.

Poverty. The poverty definition used here is that adopted for official Government use by the Office of Management and Budget and consists of a set of money income thresholds that vary by family size and composition. Families or individuals with income below a particular threshold are classified as below the poverty level. The poverty thresholds are updated every year to reflect changes in the Consumer Price Index. These thresholds are based on money income only and do not include the value of noncash benefits such as employer-provided health insurance, food stamps, or Medicaid. For a more detailed explanation, see Bureau of the Census, Current Population Reports, Series P-60.

Undocumented immigrants. The 1980 census counted about 2 million undocumented immigrants according to Census Bureau estimates. Beginning in January 1986, the independent population controls included an allowance for growth in the undocumented population for every year since 1980. This methodological change was partially offset by another change that increased the allowance for emigration of legal residents. Data shown for Current Population Surveys with controls based on pre-1986 methods have not been revised to take into account these methodological changes. Consequently, direct comparisons of CPS figures for months before January 1986 with later months will not be consistent. Series P-25, No. 985 reviews the postcensal population estimates methodology currently in use.

Appendix C. Source and Accuracy of Estimates

SOURCE OF DATA

Most estimates in this report come from data obtained in March of years 1970 through 1990 in the Current Population Survey (CPS). The Bureau of the Census conducts the survey every month, although this report uses mostly March data for its estimates. Also, some estimates come from 1970 and 1980 decennial census data. The March survey uses two sets of questions, the basic CPS and the supplement.

Basic CPS. The basic CPS collects primarily labor force data about the civilian noninstitutional population. Interviewers ask questions concerning labor force participation about each member 15 years old and over in every sample household.

The present CPS sample was selected from the 1980 decennial Census files with coverage in all 50 States and the District of Columbia. The sample is continually updated to account for new residential construction. It is located in 729 areas comprising 1,973 counties, independent cities, and minor civil divisions. About 60,000 occupied housing units are eligible for interview every month. Interviewers are unable to obtain interviews at about 2,600 of these units because the occupants are not found at home after repeated calls or are unavailable for some other reason.

Since the introduction of the CPS, the Bureau of the Census has redesigned the CPS sample several times to improve the quality and reliability of the data and to satisfy changing data needs. The most recent changes were completely implemented in July 1985.

The following table summarizes changes in the CPS designs for the years for which data appear in this report.

Description of the Current Population Survey

Time period	Number of sample areas	Housing units eligible[1]
		Interviewed	Not interviewed
1990	729	57,400	2,600
1989	729	53,600	2,500
1986-88	729	57,000	2,500
1985	[2]629/729	57,000	2,500
1982-84	629	59,000	2,500
1980-81	629	65,500	3,000
1977-79	614	55,000	3,000
1973-76	461	46,500	2,500

[1]Excludes about 2,500 Hispanic households added from the previous November sample. (See "March Supplement.")

[2]The CPS was redesigned following the 1980 Census of Population and Housing. During phase-in of the new design, housing units from the new and old designs were in the sample.

March Supplement. In addition to the basic CPS questions, interviewers asked supplementary questions in March about households, families, marital status, and living arrangements.

To obtain more reliable data for the Hispanic population, the March CPS sample was increased by about 2,500 eligible housing units, interviewed the previous November, that contained at least one sample person of Hispanic origin. In addition, the sample included persons in the Armed Forces living off post or with their families on post.

Estimation Procedure. This survey's estimation procedure inflates weighted sample results to independent estimates of the civilian noninstitutional population of the United States by age, sex, race and Hispanic/non-Hispanic categories. The independent estimates were based on statistics from decennial censuses of population; statistics on births, deaths, immigration and emigration; and statistics on the size of the Armed Forces. The independent population estimates used for 1980 to present were based on updates to controls established by the 1980 decennial census. Data previous to 1980 were based on independent population estimates from the most recent decennial census. For more details on the change in independent estimates, see the section entitled "Introduction of 1980 Census Population Controls" in an earlier report (Series P-60, No. 133). The estimation procedure for the March supplement included a further adjustment so husband and wife of a household received the same weight.

The estimates in this report for 1984 and later also employ a revised survey weighting procedure for persons of Hispanic origin. In previous years, weighted sample results were inflated to independent estimates of the noninstitutional population by age, sex, and race. There was no specific control of the survey estimates for the Hispanic population. Since then, the Bureau of the Census developed independent population controls for the Hispanic population by sex and detailed age groups. Revised weighting procedures incorporate these new controls. The independent population estimates include some, but not all, undocumented immigrants.

ACCURACY OF ESTIMATES

Since the CPS estimates come from a sample, they may differ from figures from a complete census using the same questionnaires, instructions, and enumerators. A sample survey estimate has two possible types of error: sampling and nonsampling. The accuracy of an estimate depends on both types of error, but the full extent of the nonsampling error is unknown. Consequently, one should be particularly careful when interpreting results based on a relatively small number of cases or on small differences between estimates. The standard errors for CPS estimates primarily indicate the magnitude of sampling error. They also partially measure the effect of some nonsampling errors in responses and enumeration, but do not measure systematic biases in the data. (Bias is the average over all possible samples of the differences between the sample estimates and the desired value.)

Nonsampling Variability. Nonsampling errors can be attributed to many sources. These sources include the inability to obtain information about all cases in the sample, definitional difficulties, differences in the interpretation of questions, respondents' inability or unwillingness to provide correct information or to recall information, errors made in data collection such as in recording or coding the data, errors made in processing the data, errors made in estimating values for missing data, and failure to represent all units with the sample (undercoverage).

CPS undercoverage results from missed housing units and missed persons within sample households. Compared to the level of the 1980 decennial census, overall CPS undercoverage is about 7 percent. CPS undercoverage varies with age, sex, and race. Generally, undercoverage is larger for males than for females and larger for Blacks and other races combined than for Whites. As described previously, ratio estimation to independent age-sex-race-Hispanic population controls partially corrects for the bias due to undercoverage. However, biases exist in the estimates to the extent that missed persons in missed households or missed persons in interviewed households have different characteristics from those of interviewed persons in the same age-sex-race-Hispanic group. Furthermore, the independent population controls have not been adjusted for undercoverage in the 1980 census.

For additional information on nonsampling error including the possible impact on CPS data when known, refer to Statistical Policy Working Paper 3, An Error Profile: Employment as Measured by the Current Population Survey, Office of Federal Statistical Policy and Standards, U.S. Department of Commerce, 1978; and Technical Paper 40, The Current Population Survey: Design and Methodology, Bureau of the Census, U.S. Department of Commerce.

Sampling Variability. Sampling variability is variation that occurred by chance because a sample was surveyed rather than the entire population. Standard errors, as calculated by methods described later in "Standard Errors and Their Use," are primarily measures of sampling variability, although they may include some nonsampling error.

Comparability of Data. Data obtained from the CPS and other sources are not entirely comparable. This results from differences in interviewer training and experience and in differing survey processes. This is an example of nonsampling variability not reflected in the standard errors. Use caution when comparing results from different sources.

Caution should also be used when comparing estimates in this report, which reflect 1980 census-based population controls, with estimates for 1979 and earlier years, which reflect 1970 census-based population controls. This change in population controls had relatively little impact on summary measures such as means, medians, and percent distributions, but did have a significant impact on levels. For example, use of 1980 based population controls results in about a 2-percent increase in the civilian noninstitutional population and in the number of families and households. Thus, estimates of levels for data collected in 1980 and later years will differ from those for earlier years by more than what could be attributed to actual changes in the population. These differences could be disproportionately greater for certain subpopulation groups than for the total population.

Since no independent population control totals for persons of Hispanic origin were used before 1984, compare Hispanic estimates over time cautiously.

Note When Using Small Estimates. Summary measures (such as medians and percent distributions) are shown only when the base is 75,000 or greater. Because of the large standard errors involved, summary measures would probably not reveal useful information when computed on a smaller base. However, estimated numbers are shown even though the relative standard errors of these numbers are larger than those for corresponding percentages. These smaller estimates permit combinations of the categories to suit data users' needs. Take care in the interpretation of small differences. For instance, even a small amount of nonsampling error can cause a borderline difference to appear significant or not, thus distorting a seemingly valid hypothesis test.

Standard Errors and Their Use. A number of approximations are required to derive, at a moderate cost, standard errors applicable to all the estimates in this report. Instead of providing an individual standard error for each estimate, generalized sets of standard errors are provided for various types of characteristics. Thus, the tables show levels of magnitude of standard errors rather than the precise standard errors.

The sample estimate and its standard error enable one to construct a confidence interval, a range that would include the average result of all possible samples with a known probability. For example, if all possible samples were surveyed under essentially the same general conditions and using the same sample design, and if an estimate and its standard error were calculated from each sample, then approximately 90 percent of the intervals from 1.6 standard errors below the estimate to 1.6 standard errors above the estimate would include the average result of all possible samples.

A particular confidence interval may or may not contain the average estimate derived from all possible samples. However, one can say with specified confidence that the interval includes the average estimate calculated from all possible samples.

Some statements in the report may contain estimates followed by a number in parentheses. This number can be added to and subtracted from the estimate to calculate upper and lower bounds of the 90-percent confidence interval. For example, if a statement contains the phrase "grew by 1.7 percent (±1.0)," the 90-percent confidence interval for the estimate, 1.7 percent, is 0.7 percent to 2.7 percent.

Standard errors may also be used to perform hypothesis testing, a procedure for distinguishing between population parameters using sample estimates. The most common type of hypothesis appearing in this report is that the population parameters are different. An example of this would be comparing the total number of family households in March 1990 to the total number of family households in March 1980.

Tests may be performed at various levels of significance, where a significance level is the probability of concluding that the characteristics are different when, in fact, they are the same. All statements of comparison in the text have passed a hypothesis test at the 0.10 level of significance or better. This means that the absolute value of the estimated difference between characteristics is greater than or equal to 1.6 times the standard error of the difference.

Standard Errors of Estimated Numbers. There are two ways to compute the approximate standard error, s_x, of an estimated number shown in this report. The first uses the formula where f is a factor from table C-3, and s is the standard error of the estimate obtained by interpolation from table C-1. The second method uses formula (2), from which the standard errors in table C-1 were calculated. This formula will provide more accurate results than formula (1).

$$s_x = \sqrt{ax^2 + bx} \qquad (2)$$

Here x is the size of the estimate and a and b are the parameters in table C-3 associated with the particular type of characteristic. When calculating standard errors for numbers from cross-tabulations involving different characteristics, use the factor or set of parameters for the characteristic which will give the largest standard error.

Illustration. Table A of this report shows there were 93,347,000 households in 1990. Using formula (1) with f = 1.0 from table C-3 and s = 221,000 interpolating from table C-1, the standard error of 93,347,000 is approximately

$$s_x = (1.0)\ (221{,}000) = 221{,}000$$

Alternatively, using formula (2) with a = -0.000012 and b = 1,661 from table C-3, the approximate standard error is

$$s_x = \sqrt{-0.000012\ (93{,}347{,}000)^2 + 1{,}661(93{,}347{,}000)} = 225{,}000$$

The 90-percent confidence interval for the number of households in 1990 is from 92,987,000 to 93,707,000, i.e., 93,347,000 ± 1.6(225,000). Therefore, a conclusion that the average estimate derived from all possible samples lies within a range computed in this way would be correct for roughly 90 percent of all possible samples.

Standard Errors of Estimated Percentages. The reliability of an estimated percentage, computed using sample data for both numerator and denominator, depends on the size of the percentage and its base. Estimated percentages are relatively more reliable than the corresponding estimates of the numerators of the percentages, particularly if the percentages are 50 percent or more. When the numerator and denominator of the percentage are in different categories, use the factor or parameter from table C-3 indicated by the numerator.

The approximate standard error, $s_{x,p}$, of an estimated percentage can be obtained by use of the formula

In this formula, f is the appropriate factor from table C-3, and s is the standard error of the estimate obtained by interpolation from table C-2.

Alternatively, formula (4) will provide more accurate results:

$$s_{x,p} = \sqrt{bp(100 - p)/x} \qquad (4)$$

Here x is the total number of persons, families, households, or unrelated individuals in the base of the percentage, p is the percentage ($0 \leq p \leq 100$), and b is the parameter in table C-3 associated with the characteristic in the numerator of the percentage.

Illustration. Table A shows that of the 93,347,000 households in 1990, 52,317,000 or 56.0 percent were married-couple families. Using formula (3) with f = 1.0 from table C-3 and s = 0.2 interpolating from table C-2, the standard error on 56.0 percent is approximately

Alternatively, using formula (4) with b = 1,661 from table C-3, the approximate standard error on an estimate of 56.0 percent is

$$s_{x,p} = \sqrt{1{,}661(56.0 \times 44.0)/93{,}347{,}000} = 0.2 \text{ percent}$$

Consequently, the 90-percent confidence interval for the percentage of households in 1990 that were married-couple families is from 55.7 to 56.3 percent, i.e., 56.0 ± 1.6(0.2).

Standard Error of a Difference. The standard error of the difference between two sample estimates is approximately equal to where sx and sy are the standard errors of the estimates, x and y. The estimates can be numbers, percentages, ratios, etc. This will represent the actual standard error quite accurately for the difference between estimates of the same characteristic in two different areas, or for the difference between separate and uncorrelated characteristics in the same area. However, if there is a high positive (negative) correlation between the two characteristics, the formula will overestimate (underestimate) the true standard error.

$$s_{x-y} = \sqrt{s_x^2 + s_y^2} \qquad (5)$$

Illustration. Table A shows that 70.8 percent of the 93,347,000 households in 1990 were family households, whereas, 73.7 percent of the 80,776,000 households in 1980 were family households. The apparent difference between these percentages is 2.9 percent.

Note: For regional estimates multiply the a and b parameters by 0.74, 0.98, 1.04 and 1.06 for Northeast, Midwest, South, and West, respectively. For nonmetropolitan data multiply the parameters by 1.5.

Refer to tables C-4 and C-5 to approximate a and b parameters for years 1947 to 1989.

Using b = 1,661 from table C-3 and formula (4), the standard error on the estimate of 70.8 percent with a base of 93,347,000 is

$$s_{x,p} = \sqrt{1{,}661(70.8 \times 29.2) / 93{,}347{,}000} = 0.2 \text{ percent}$$

Similarly, the standard error on the estimate of 73.7 percent with a base of 80,776,000 and b = 1,395 = 1,661x0.84 is

$$s_{x,p} = \sqrt{1{,}395(73.7 \times 26.3) / 80{,}776{,}000} = 0.2 \text{ percent}$$

Using formula (5) the approximate standard error on the estimated difference of 2.9 percent is

$$s_{x,y} = \sqrt{(0.2)^2 + (0.2)^2} = 0.3 \text{ percent}$$

This means that the 90-percent confidence interval on the difference between the percent of households which were family households in 1990 and 1980 is from 2.4 to 3.4 percent, i.e., 2.9 ± 1.6(0.3). Since this interval does not contain zero, we can conclude with 90 percent confidence that the percentage of households which are family households has decreased between 1980 and 1990.

Standard Error of a Ratio. Certain estimates may be calculated as the ratio of two numbers. The standard error of a ratio, x/y, may be computed using

The standard error of the numerator, s_x, and that of the denominator, s_y, may be calculated using formula (2). Alternatively, use formula (1) and table C-3. In formula (6), r represents the correlation between the numerator and the denominator of the estimate.

For one type of ratio, the denominator is a count of families or households and the numerator is a count of persons in those families or households with a certain characteristic. If there is at least one person with the characteristic in every family or household, use 0.7 as an estimate of r. An example of this type is the mean number of children per family with children.

For all other types of ratios, r is assumed to be zero. If r is actually positive (negative), then this procedure will provide an overestimate (underestimate) of the standard error of the ratio. Examples of this type are the mean number of children per family and the poverty rate.

NOTE: For estimates expressed as the ratio of x per 100 y or x per 1,000 y, multiply formula (6) by 100 or 1,000, respectively, to obtain the standard error.

Illustration. Table C shows the number of household members under 18 years of age, x, was 64,303,000 and the number of total households, y, was 93,347,000 in 1990. The average number of household members under 18 per household is 0.69. The standard error of the ratio x/y = 0.69 is calculated by using the following steps:

1. Compute s_x and s_y using formula (2).

$$s_x = \sqrt{-0.000020(64{,}303{,}000)^2 + 4{,}185(64{,}303{,}000)} = 432{,}000$$

$$s_y = \sqrt{-0.000012(93{,}347{,}000)^2 + 1{,}661(93{,}347{,}000)} = 225{,}000$$

2. Compute $(s_x/x)^2 = 0.000045$.
3. Compute $(s_y/y)^2 = 0.000006$.
4. Using formula (6) with r = 0, the approximate standard error is

$$s_{x/y} = 0.69\sqrt{0.000045 + 0.000006} = 0.005$$

This means that the 90-percent confidence interval for the average number of household members under 18 per household is from 0.68 to 0.70, i.e., 0.69 ± 1.6(0.005).

Standard Error of a Median. The sampling variability of an estimated median depends on the form of the distribution and the size of the base. One can approximate the reliability of an estimated median by determining a confidence interval about it. (See the section on sampling variability for a general discussion of confidence intervals.)

Estimate the 68-percent confidence limits of a median based on sample data using the following procedure.

1. Determine, using formula (4), the standard error of the estimate of 50 percent from the distribution.
2. Add to and subtract from 50 percent the standard error determined in step 1.
3. Using the distribution of the characteristic, determine upper and lower limits of the 68-percent confidence interval by calculating values corresponding to the two points established in step 2.

   Use the following formula to calculate the upper and lower limits.

$$X_{pN} = \frac{pN - N_1}{N_2 - N_1}(A_2 - A_1) + A_1 \qquad (7)$$

   where

   XpN = estimated upper and lower bounds for the confidence interval ($0 \leq p \leq 1$). For purposes of calculating the confidence interval, p takes on the values determined in step 2. Note that X_{pN} estimates the median when $p = 0.50$.

   N = for distribution of numbers: the total number of units (persons, households, etc.) for the characteristic in the distribution.

   = for distribution of percentages: the value 1.0.

   p = the values obtained in step 2.

   A_1, A_2 = the lower and upper bounds, respectively, of the interval containing X_{pN}.

   N_1, N_2 = for distribution of numbers: the estimated number of units (persons, households, etc.) with values of the characteristic greater than or equal to A_1 and A_2, respectively.

   = for distribution of percentages: the estimated percentage of units (persons, households, etc.) having values of the characteristic greater than or equal to A_1 and A_2, respectively.

4. Divide the difference between the two points determined in step 3 by two to obtain the standard error of the median.

Illustration. Table D of this report shows that the estimated median age of all householders was 45.3 years and the base of the distribution from which this median was determined, N, was 93,347,000 householders.

1. Using formula (4) and b = 1,661 from table C-3, the standard error of 50 percent with a base of 93,347,000 is

$$s_{x,p} = \sqrt{1{,}661(50.0 \times 50.0) / 93{,}347{,}000} = 0.2 \text{ percent}$$

2. To obtain the 68-percent confidence interval, add to and subtract from 50 percent the standard error found in step 1. This yields percentage limits of 49.8 and 50.2.
3. Table D also shows that 47,199,000 householders were 45 years of age or older and 32,685,000 were 55 or older. Use formula (7) to find the upper limit on the 68-percent confidence interval:

$$\frac{0.498(93{,}347{,}000) - 47{,}199{,}000}{32{,}685{,}000 - 47{,}199{,}000}(55 - 45) + 45 = 45.5$$

   Similarly, the lower limit can be computed as

$$\frac{0.502(93{,}347{,}000) - 47{,}199{,}000}{32{,}685{,}000 - 47{,}199{,}000}(55 - 45) + 45 = 45.2$$

4. The standard error of the median age of all householders can be approximated as

$$s_{median} = \frac{45.5 - 45.2}{2} = 0.2 \text{ years}$$
